

Monday, April 21, 2008

Art is where you find it: Pt. 4: Harrison library

Sara Pearce is an award-winning editor and reporter who has worked on a variety of beats at a half dozen newspapers from USA Today to the Orlando Sentinel. She was the Enquirer's Visual Arts reporter during 2005 and most of '06 - and now has returned to the beat. E-mail her your art news, announcements, gossip, rants and raves - and add your voice to the conversation by commenting on postings. As Sara says "My blog is your blog." Email: spearce@enquirer.com

Previous

Posts

- American Sign Museum's secret revealed
- Saturday LeWitt gallery talk is full
- MacAuliffe's yummy new UnMuseum installation
- Kevin T. Kelly at AVS Art
- MuralWorks '08 has begun in

I intended to visit Manifest and the Carnegie Saturday since I couldn't attend their Friday openings and hadn't had a chance to preview the shows. But before doing that, I opted for Findlay Market and then to the public library branch in Harrison. The library had sent me intriguing close-ups of a piece called "The Natural Mandala" and I wanted to see the entire thing. It being Earth Week and all. So, off I went.

Queensgate & Downtown

- Tongue-in-cheek fun at UC's Meyers Gallery
- Hutchinson at Weston-Bolling: a kinder, gentler ec...
- It's directors x 2 for LeWitt x 2 and it's a hot t...
- Art is where you find it: Pt. 4: Harrison library ...
- Weekend art warriors: the Friday night dash

Archives

- September 2005
- October 2005
- November 2005
- December 2005
- January 2006
- February 2006
- March 2006
- April 2006
- May 2006
- June 2006
- July 2006
- August 2006
- September 2006
- October 2006
- November 2006
- December 2006
- January 2007
- February 2007
- March 2007
- April 2007

As you can tell from the details above, the mandala is a fascinating and intricate piece made with leaves, seeds, pods, bark, moss and much more that artist Rex Oxley has almost turned into a mini-industry. He's offering giclee prints, note cards, a color-by-hand poster, and a book about the making and meaning of it. His entrepreneurial zeal is admirable. After that, I decided to head into Harrison's historic downtown just to see what was happening there. Like many small downtowns, it's struggling - especially since places like the library, supermarkets and big box stores have built east of downtown, creating the inevitable sprawl. There wasn't much to see. I didn't take the GPS with me - a gift from the Reluctant Gallerist - because I like getting lost.